Dear hiring committee,

I am writing to express my genuine enthusiasm for an internship position at Rubis Energie, ideally from January 6th to April 4th 2025. As I look forward to the prospect of this opportunity, I want to share a bit about my background, which has been enriched by a tapestry of international experiences.

In July 2023, I finished my economics "classe préparatoire", an intensive two-year preparatory class for competitive entrance into French Grandes Écoles. I was subsequently admitted to EDHEC Business School and am currently enrolled in the Master in Finance of their "Programme Grande École". During the second semester of this academic year, I participated in an academic exchange at IE University in Madrid, where I had the opportunity, as part of the Advanced Excel for Decision Making course, to complete a project in which I did a comparative analysis of 6 stock indexes (S&P, NASDAQ, FTSE, CAC, DAX, NIFTY), and computed an optimal portfolio by maximizing the Sharpe ratio and graphing an efficiency frontier function. This deepened my interest in finance and more specifically in market finance. This special interest prompted me to pass the GMAT exam and apply for the Quantitative Technique for Economics and Management (QTEM) network exchange. QTEM develops skills in analytical and quantitative techniques to support decision-making in an international context. The QTEM Master's program is open to outstanding students enrolled at Academic Partner institutions.

I was subsequently accepted into the program and am set to go on exchange at TUM in Munich for the second semester of the coming academic year. I'll be able to further my understanding of market finance (in particular of energy markets) and its underlying mechanisms, through courses such as Stochastic Optimization, Energy Trading, Lecture Modelling and Optimization in Energy Markets. I therefore continue to sharpen my skills and would be excited to leverage them to excel at Rubis Energie.

This summer, I decided to do an M&A internship in Belgium. I wanted to see first-hand what corporate finance was like before fully committing to a career in market finance, as I'm also interested in learning about businesses and discerning the elements that contribute to their success. On the other hand, what draws me to market finance and more specifically Sales/Trading is its dynamic and analytic nature. This branch of finance combines both financial engineering and risk-management, which aligns perfectly with my strengths in problem-solving, creativity, and innovation. I am deeply interested in energy markets, as they are pivotal in our shift towards more renewable energy sources, and also play an important geopolitical role as seen with the Ukrainian war. What also fascinates me about commodities markets, especially grains, is their fundamental impact on global food security and agriculture. Grains like wheat and corn are not just trading assets; they are essential to feeding the world's population. The dynamics of grain markets are particularly intriguing because they are influenced by a multitude of factors including weather conditions, crop yields, geopolitical events, and trade policies. This interplay of variables creates a complex and ever-changing landscape where strategic insights and market acumen are key. Therefore, the opportunity to engage with this sector offers both intellectual challenge and the chance to contribute to solutions that affect global food systems and economic stability.

In addition, my life journey has taken me to various countries, such as Norway, Malaysia, Poland each offering unique cultural experiences and challenges. These early experiences instilled in me a deep appreciation for cultural diversity and the ability to adapt to new environments with an open mind. My time in the Netherlands was marked by my attendance at a European school during four crucial years, which allowed me to become fluent in English. These diverse experiences have not only honed my adaptability and cross-cultural skills but have also strengthened my belief in the importance of a global perspective. This quality aligns seamlessly with Rubis Energie's ethos. Throughout my journey, I've consistently aimed for nothing short of excellence in everything I undertake. I firmly believe that the pursuit of excellence is a journey, not a destination, and I see Rubis Energie as the perfect place to continue this journey, surrounded by a team that shares the same commitment.

Beyond my academic and professional journey, I firmly believe in leading a well-rounded life. In my free time, you can often find me at the gym or running, which allows me to find clarity and inspiration. Additionally, I have a deep love for music, particularly mixing electronic beats, which satisfies my creative spirit.

I would be honored to discuss how my experiences and skills align with Rubis Energie during an interview. I remain at your disposal to arrange a suitable time for a conversation, and sincerely thank you for considering my application.

Warm regards,

Oscar Bonnet.
